Modern China (Since) Painting in China, as with all the arts of China since , has reflected the effects of modernization, the impact of Western art, and the political, military, and economic struggles of the period, including the war with Japan (–45), the civil war that ended in the establishment in of the People’s Republic of China, and the rapid economic changes of the late 20th and early 21st .

Chinese painting has a rich history as an enduring art form and is well known throughout the world. Traditionally, Chinese painting is done on rice paper or thin silk, using a . Traditional Chinese painting can be classified as figure paintings, landscapes and flower-and-bird paintings. Landscapes represent a major category in traditional Chinese painting, mainly depicting the natural scenery of mountains and rivers.

Chinese art is visual art that, whether ancient or modern, originated in or is practiced in China or by Chinese artists. The Chinese art in the Republic of China (Taiwan) and that of overseas Chinese can also be considered part of Chinese art where it is based in or draws on Chinese heritage and Chinese culture. The origins of Chinese music and poetry can be found in the Book of Songs, containing poems composed between B.C.E. and B.C.E.. The text, preserved among the canon of early Chinese literature, contains folk songs, religious hymns and stately . As he recounts the long history of Chinese painting, he defines its traditions through the ages.
