Aug 30, The Mahalanobis-Taguchi Strategy presents methods for developing multidimensional measurement scales that are up to date with the most current trends in multivariate diagnosis/pattern recognition-namely, using measures and procedures that /5(8). This book (The Mahalanobis-Taguchi Strategy) describes the best multi-dimensional database system that exists today. This system takes a database consisting of many variables used to describe a certain 'reference population', and converts it into just one variable called MD (the Mahalanobis Distance)/5(2). Mahalanobis-Taguchi System (MTS) is a pattern information technology, which has been used in different diagnostic applications to make quantitative decisions by constructing a multivariate measurement scale using data analytic methods.

The Mahalanobis-Taguchi (MT) strategy combines mathematical and statistical concepts like Mahalanobis distance, Gram-Schmidt orthogonalization and experimental designs to support diagnosis and decision-making based on multivariate data.
